

[November 7, 2016]

The other shoe has dropped. Sort of.

On November 6, FBI director James Comey sent a letter to Congressional leaders informing them that, after reviewing the 650,000 emails found on the shared laptop of Hillary Clinton's top flunky, Huma Abedin and Abedin's estranged hubby, disgraced former Congressman Anthony Weiner, the FBI will not recommend that Hillary face criminal prosecution. Eight days earlier, the mainstream media, which haven't even pretended to be objective (that's an understatement) during the freak show which has passed itself off as a presidential race, were whacked upside the head when Comey sent a letter to Congressional leaders informing them the FBI will be examining Abedin's and Weiner's laptop. Why this was such a shock to Hillary's Hoes is because they thought the Clinton Crime Family had taken care of Comey when he declared on July 5 that he would not recommend that Attorney General Loretta Lynch indict Her Majesty for "extreme carelessness" with classified information she sent and received on the server she had installed in her home while Secretary of State, even though he admitted to Congress on July 7 that she flat-out lied to his G-Men!

Either the check from Her Majesty bounced or Comey is still counting the millions he bagged in 2010 as VP and general counsel to Clinton Foundation donor Lockheed Martin AND the millions he bagged during his 2010-2013 tenure as senior counsel to Clinton Foundation donor Bridgewater Associates AND the millions he bagged during his 2010-2013 tenure as a director at Clinton Foundation partner HSBC Holdings. By the way, his brother is a big shot at super-law firm and top Democratic Party bundler DLA Piper. Did I mention it took the FBI 15 months to review Hillary's 55,000 emails, yet it took the FBI just 7 days to plow through Abedin's and Weiner's 650,000 emails? Coincidence? Think not.

But it gets worse. WAY worse. The wife of the man who conducted the FBI probe concerning Hillary and Weiner was given nearly-$500,000 by Clinton Crony Terry McAuliffe for her failed state rep campaign. And FBI memos reveal that Hillary had State Department emails and documents printed out by her maid, who also routinely fetched for Her Majesty the top secret Presidential Daily Brief! Yep, you read that right -- HER MAID! And, as if to prove to the entire universe just how truly-inept it is, the FBI DID NOT interview the maid nor requested the iMac she used to print the documents!

But have pity on poor Hillary. She was SO upset that Al Gore was "robbed" of the presidency, she helped herself to a 6-figure, 5-finger discount as she and Bubba cleared out of The White House. Reportedly, she STILL has some of the items, even though she was ordered to return all of the ill-gotten booty. Even the Washington Post acknowledged that the Clintons "have no capacity for embarrassment. Words like 'shabby' and 'tawdry' come to mind. They don't begin to do it justice". Marie-Antoinette was a rank amateur by comparison!

You have to admire Hillary's Hoes for their blind loyalty. Despite the fact their gal is under federal investigation (a HUGE Constitutional crisis if she is elected), that Wikileaks - truly, the gift that keeps on giving - outed the Clinton Foundation as a glorified slush fund which footed the $3 million tab for daughter Chelsea's wedding (charity begins at home!), that the self-proclaimed champion of women and homosexuals has accepted millions from countries where women have next-to-no rights and homosexuals are executed, that she used her position as Secretary of State to run a play-for-pay scheme, that she had her server "wiped" after being subpoenaed to return her public record to the State Department regarding the attack on our embassy in Benghazi which killed our ambassador and three other men (and Hillary and Obama falsely blamed on a YouTube video made by an innocent man, whose life they then proceeded to utterly destroy), that the men who "wiped" the server pleaded the 5th at a Congressional hearing, that she had Democratic Party National Chair Debbie Wasserman-Schultz rig the primary so Bernie Sanders couldn't win the nomination (a lesson learned when she had Obama by the gonads at the 2008 DNC, only to foolishly cut a deal giving him the nomination by acclamation, promptly making herself irrelevant), that Comey agreed to have the laptops used by the Clinton Cronies he cut immunity deals with destroyed, that Lynch and Bill Clinton had a "friendly chat" just 8 days before Comey let Her Majesty off the hook the first time, that every one of these shenanigans are felonies which would have you or me in the pen for at least 20 years, the media and cultural elites continue to keep their collective heads in the sand, celebrities even vowing to leave the country if The Orange Boogeyman Donald Trump wins.

While Yahoo! has posted links to anti-Hillary articles as Election Day draws near, in a bumbling attempt at pretending to be objective, its writers beat Trump like a drum. Likewise, equally self-deluded individuals clog social media stumping for the Clinton Crime Family. On November 1, ex-Hillary advisor Peter Daou had #TerribleTrump trending #1 on Twitter while a group of celebrities launched a video on FunnyorDie featuring these charming lyrics:

"And it really doesn't take a rocket scientist to know
When your rocket's fucking racist, that racist rocket will explode
Donald Trump is human syphilis and we can be the antidote
So holy fucking shit, you've got to vote!"

Given the above litany of hi-jinks, why would anyone with an ounce of self-respect support Hillary Diane Rodham? Trump is certainly no prize (his son admitted in a 2006 interview that he refused to speak to him for 3 months after Trump left the boy's mother for Marla Maples), but he's a paragon of virtue compared to Hillary. When you consider Obama lied when he said he learned of her server from new reports and has treated the Constitution as his personal toilet paper, little wonder he and his worse-half - who despise the Clintons as much as the Clintons despise them - are traversing the country to stump for Her Majesty.

The history of totalitarianism in the United States is too long and complex to recount here. Suffice to say, the ascendancy of Hillary Clinton and Barack Obama did not happen in a vacuum; the groundwork was laid decades before they were born. White Americans who grew up from the 1930s onward were conditioned by the Marxist / Socialists / Communists / Fascists - which slowly but surely infiltrated journalism, public education, and entertainment - that America is inherently evil, having been founded by white men, and, by extension, whites are inherently evil. Those whites who suffer from "White Guilt" are so indoctrinated, they are convinced that those who espouse an opposing view are evil. I suffered from White Guilt without even realizing it until my encounter with the guy at USC manning a Boycott South Africa table (see "Madiba Does His Little Dance in Hell").

Conversely, non-white Americans have been conditioned by the Marxist / Socialists / Communists / Fascists to hate the country which "continues" to "subjugate" them – all the while, being told that they are incapable of walking and chewing gum at the same time. Couple this with Women's Liberation (which up-ended gender roles by raping men emotionally and psychologically, and, in turn, provided the springboard for the LGBTQQ rights movement), the all-out assault on Judeo-Christian ethics by the popular culture and academia, with the blatantly-unconstitutional Supreme Court opinions on contraception and abortion, and you have the perfect storm for societal Armageddon.

Hillary did her college thesis on Saul Alinsky, who dedicated his book Rules for Radicals to Lucifer. Obama's white grandfather was pals with black activist and fellow Socialist / atheist Frank Marshall Davis, who had a profound influence on the lad. Through them, and the alliances each cultivated with other like-minded individuals, Hillary and Obama figured out how to marry the idealism totalitarianism peddles with a cynical Divide-and-Conquer, Ends-Justify-The-Means ruthlessness that would have made Machiavelli blush. Remember how Obama threw his dying white grandmother under the bus to save his campaign and defend his relationship with vehemently-racist pastor Jeremiah Wright, giving MSNBC airhead Chris Matthews a thrill up his leg? I rest my case.

Trump is the greatest threat ever faced by the elites because he cannot be bought or bullied. Worse, he has the support of the Great Unwashed Hillary and Obama and the elites hold in utter contempt. Unfortunately, from what I'm seeing, most voters have just been too brainwashed to save themselves and their country. Saul Alinsky and Frank Marshall Davis would be jolly pleased.
